MAY 2020

SAN JUAN BASIN
ARCHAEOLOGICAL SOCIETY

www.sjbas.org

May 13th Meeting CANCELLED

Due to the ongoing COVID-19 health crisis, all SJBAS scheduled activities and field trips have been cancelled through June. We will keep members informed in a timely manner as to additional schedule changes or rescheduled activities.

President's Letter

Dear SJBAS Members:

We are all fatigued with hearing constantly about the coronavirus, isolating ourselves, wearing masks, and not getting together with friends. In the meantime, numerous archaeological subjects have been presented by staff at Crow Canyon through the use of the online Zoom app. They have been interesting and help keep us thinking that we will be back going on field trips to interesting places and engaging in educational lectures.

Our activities have been canceled through the end of June and we will make the decision on the fate of future activities later in May. Our lectures are tied to the opening of Fort Lewis College which has just announced they will try to resume face to face classes in the fall. Our field trips are dependent on having access to locations like southeast Utah, the Navajo Nation, Hopi, and Zuni, etc. and they all are closed for safety reasons into the future. We will continue to assess what is going on around us and make decisions based on the safety of our members, visitors, and the locations we would like to visit.

Hang in there; we will be back with a fun and interesting program as soon as we can.

Sincerely,
Rege Leach

John W. Sanders Internship Project – Student Summary

The Spring 2020 John W. Sanders Internship was granted to Amanda Vodicka. Amanda is an anthropology major at Fort Lewis College who is graduating in Spring 2020. She is a Dean's List student and has received the John Ives and Gabe Doegler anthropology scholarship awards. She was a work-study librarian at the Delaney Library at the Center of Southwest Studies her freshman year, and this past spring she received a grant from the San Juan Basin Archaeological Society for an archaeology-based internship at the museum. Throughout the semester she worked with staff and other interns on inventorying the collections and began cataloging the Brougner Site objects from accession 2007:035. Follow this link to Amanda's summary of her work, Cataloging Brougner. This summary is in lieu of Amanda making a presentation to SJBAS as there will no opportunity for her to do this before she graduates this spring. The remainder of the internship is being completed online with additional training and group discussions. In the future, Amanda plans on moving to the Pacific Northwest and enrolling in a graduate program for leadership and sustainability with plans of coordinating educational programs at a museum.

Thank you SJBAS for your continued support of the Center of Southwest Studies and Fort Lewis College students!

Stay well ~ Julie Tapley-Booth

In Memoriam – Jeff Davis

Jeff Borden Davis, 92, of Durango, Colorado died on April 16, 2020 at the Mercy Hospice House. Born August 5, 1927 in Emporia, Kansas to parents Lee C. Davis and Lena Moore Davis, he was preceded in death by his parents, half -brothers Delmont and Clark, brother Gayle Davis and sister Shirley Davis Coleman. He is survived by niece Sherri Coleman Hanna and her spouse Gary of Edgerton, Kansas, their children and grandchildren, and nephew Robyn Coleman of Kansas City, Missouri, and child. No services are scheduled at this time; a celebration of life will be held at a later date.

After graduation from Gardner Kansas High School in 1945, Jeff enlisted in the Navy V-5 pre-flight program and was honorably discharged from the Navy in 1946. He began studies at Kansas University, then transferred to Denver University, where he completed his BA in Mass Communications in 1950. Jeff left Colorado to work as a copywriter for KFBC in Wyoming for a short period, before being drafted into the Army during the Korean conflict. After serving two years with the National Security Agency in Washington D.C., he was discharged with the rank of Sergeant. Resuming his work as a copywriter, he spent time first at stations in Nebraska and Oklahoma, then settled in Grand Rapids, Michigan working for WOOD, (Time-Life Broadcast) where he became Public Affairs Director and Documentary Director. During his ten years with WOOD, the station received numerous awards, including an Emmy for an expose of Kalamazoo State Hospital deficiencies. Jeff left WOOD in 1966 to form an advertising and public relations firm, where he first met and worked with client Gerald Ford during his congressional campaigns and formed a deep and lasting friendship with President Ford and his wife Betty. In 1978, Jeff sold his stake in the agency and began his work with the Universal Companies, first in the restaurant division as marketing director, then later as administrative assistant to the chairman, and as corporate communications director. Jeff moved to the firm's major subsidiary, Universal Forest Products (U.S.'s fourth-largest building materials supplier), as their market and communications manager, retiring after 16 years with the company.

Returning to Colorado in 1995, Jeff made his retirement home in Durango. Retired in name only, he brought his many talents and skills to a variety of organizations. His interest in the arts and music was spread among many Durango institutions. Active in the First Presbyterian Church, he lent his strong singing voice to the choir and was a valued and enthusiastic member of the Durango Barbershoppers. Jeff sat on the board of the (former) Community Concerts Association and of the San Juan Symphony. As a long-time volunteer with the Durango Arts Society, he was a principal in the Summer Street Arts Festival. He could also be found volunteering with the Fort Lewis College Center for Southwest Studies museum and the Animas City Museum. Jeff served on the boards of the San Juan Basin Archeological Society and the Four Corners Rose Society, pursuing his study of the history and culture of the area and raising prize-winning roses. Jeff also supported the Animas Valley Grange both as a board member and could be found in the kitchen utilizing his chef skills at every event.

An avid traveler (England and Italy were his favorite countries) Jeff often went off the beaten path, Ethiopia and Nigeria, Yemen, India, and Fiji to name a few, collecting masks as he went. Skiing, hiking, and Jeeping were part of his favored Colorado lifestyle, until a successful surgery to remove a brain tumor curtailed his more strenuous activities. After recovery, Jeff continued to pursue his hobbies of photography, gardening, and birdwatching and whipping up his famous pies with the fruit picked from his yard. And he continued to follow and believe in his beloved Kansas City Chiefs.

Loved by many, Jeff B. Davis will be remembered by his family, friends, and neighbors as a man of strong faith and conviction, with the determination to meet life on his terms and as a civic-minded example worth emulating. We are sad to mark his passing, but as Jeff, himself would say "No whining!". -- Published in The Durango Herald on April 17, 2020

"Jeff did a lot of work for SJBAS – those were the days when John Sanders wrote long Moki messages on his typewriter, Jeff organized the notes into the newsletter that went to the printers; then he picked them up and took them to the Post Office to be mailed according to zip code – which cost a lot of money. After some of us switched to email, some hard copies still had to be mailed until everyone had a computer and decided to switch." – by Eliane Viner

Upcoming Online Archaeology Events

Amerind Museum – Dragoon, Arizona

Sixty years ago, the Amerind Museum in Dragoon, Arizona, excavated Paquime in Chihuahua, Mexico, one of the most amazing archaeological sites in our region. Created by archaeological scholars, the new permanent exhibit “Without Borders: The Deep History of Paquime” lets visitors explore the art, history and architecture that flourished over seven centuries ago. The exhibit tells Paquime’s story from Amerind foundational research to the latest discoveries made there.

Virtual tour of several archeology sites in Grand Canyon National Park

Archaeology Southwest subscriber Tom Bartels sent this note: I produced a virtual tour of several archeology sites for Grand Canyon National Park a number of years ago. It is still being used on the National Park website, and is an interesting, immersive experience that allows viewers to see the inside of room blocks and other spaces in 360-degree virtual space. (The VRs run with Adobe Flash, so in some browsers, people may have to download Adobe Flash.) <https://www.nps.gov/features/grca/001/archeology/index.html>

A Message from Crow Canyon Archaeological Center

With the safety of its staff, program participants, and community in mind, Crow Canyon Archaeological Center has closed its campus until further notice due to the coronavirus pandemic. Additionally, Crow Canyon’s spring and summer programs have been canceled in response to school closures in Colorado and other states. “We miss seeing our supporters on our campus, but the safety of our program participants, visitors, and staff is our paramount concern,” said Liz Perry, president & CEO of Crow Canyon. “As we navigate this new environment, we’re dedicated to meeting our supporters where they are and finding innovative ways to serve them remotely. We look forward to being back together in-person soon, fulfilling our mission with delightfully dirty hands and open hearts.” For more information, visit Crow Canyon’s website at www.crowcanyon.org.

Commentary: Evolution and the Strangeness of Social Distancing

For some, particularly self-described introverts, this new form of distancing may not feel so different from their previous everyday life. But for many, it forces a pattern of behaviors that feels unnatural and uncomfortable, feeding a rising sense of anxiety. Why does intentionally avoiding physical interaction with other humans during our daily routine feel so strange? The answer may lie in millions of years of behavioral and cultural evolution. – George M. Leader at Sapiens (Read article)

Commentary: The Surprising History of Radiocarbon Dating

Several years ago, I went back to Chicago to see some old friends: artifacts, really—ancient sandals to be precise. The sandals were at the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, Illinois, where I worked in the early 2000s. They had been found in Tularosa Cave, New Mexico, in 1950, and their construction from reed matting made clear they were from early Indigenous people of that region, a group that archaeologists call the Mogollon (pronounced MOH'-gee-yoan). But I wanted to know exactly how old they were, so I was returning to collect samples for radiocarbon dating. – Stephen E. Nash at Sapiens (Read article)

Online Events and Opportunities

Each Tuesday and Thursday at noon the staff of Utah’s State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO) will be taking to Facebook Live to talk about their projects and take your questions. Since we’re all working from home, we’re taking this opportunity to expand our outreach and education efforts in the digital world. You can learn more at facebook.com/UtahSHPO and send us suggestions for future topics you’d like to see. We’ll be at it until COVID-19 (and earthquakes!) let us get back into our regular schedules.
